

David Cutler Bio

David Cutler is currently the Otto Eckstein Professor of Applied Economics at Harvard University. Professor Cutler's research is in health and public economics. He served on the Council of Economic Advisers and the National Economic Council during the Clinton Administration, advised the Presidential campaign of Bill Bradley, and was senior health care advisor to the Presidential campaign of Barack Obama. Among other affiliations, Professor Cutler has held positions with the National Institutes of Health and the National Academy of Sciences. Currently, Professor Cutler is a Research Associate at the National Bureau of Economic Research and a member of the Institute of Medicine.