JEREMY C. STEIN

Jeremy C. Stein is the Moise Y. Safra Professor of Economics at Harvard University, where he teaches courses in finance in the undergraduate and PhD programs.

Before coming to Harvard in 2000, Stein was for ten years on the finance faculty of M.I.T.'s Sloan School of Management, most recently as the J.C. Penney Professor of Management. Prior to that, he was an assistant professor of finance at the Harvard Business School from 1987-1990. He received his AB in economics summa cum laude from Princeton University in 1983 and his PhD in economics from M.I.T. in 1986.

Stein's research has covered such topics as: behavioral finance and stock-market efficiency; corporate investment and financing decisions; risk management; capital allocation inside firms; financial intermediation; and monetary policy. He was a co-editor of the Journal of Economic Perspectives, and has been on the editorial boards of the American Economic Review, the Quarterly Journal of Economics, the Journal of Finance and the Journal of Financial Economics. He is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and a research associate at the National Bureau of Economic Research. In 2008, he was president of the American Finance Association. From February-July of 2009, he served in the Obama Administration, as a senior advisor to the Treasury Secretary and on the staff of the National Economic Council.
